PRESS RELEASE

UNDERY AT THE DISCERNING EYE

British artist, David Undery has been invited to show his unique relief wall sculptures in concrete at The Discerning Eye exhibition being held at London's Mall Galleries from 13 to 23 November 2003.

Undery exudes a passion for concrete – the medium he has stamped with his own inimitable hallmark. “It is the innate nature of concrete that fascinates me. For this exhibition I have created a new concept ‘Through the Mass’ – which explores a relationship between the strength of concrete and the force of light. In this two-dimensional work, metal inlay interacts with light and shadow to intensify the shape and form.” says David Undery.

Sponsored by ING, The Discerning Eye exhibition is the highlight of the arts' Autumn calendar. This annual exhibition of small works attracts a range of paintings, prints, photographs and sculptures that truly represent the best of British artists. It is independently selected by six prominent figures from different areas of the art-world, who choose work from open submission and also invite a small number of artists to show. Undery's work is included in the exhibition at the invitation of Selector, John Caine, MBE, the recently retired Chairman of The Discerning Eye; writer, playwright, and avid collector.

Other Selectors include Lord Bath, who is the eccentric owner of Longleat, an artist, collector and well known for his many ‘wives’; Diana Armfield RA who is an artist of great renown, a member of the New English Art Club and whose work is held in many major collections including HRH Prince Charles; and Rachel Campbell-Johnston, art critic of The Times newspaper.

Undery's work can also be seen at Urban Interiors – 7-9 November, Commonwealth Institute, Kensington, London. Adrienne Chinn Stand No. UG49.
